Herb Image Classification

Samantha Hossain
1008967138, samantha.hossain@utoronto.ca
Link to Google Colab

Introduction

As I started getting into gardening, I realized that I was not able to diffrentiate between different types of herbs. I wanted to create a model that could classify different types of herbs based on images. This would be useful for those who just started cooking with herbs, and do not know the difference between all of them to identify herbs quickly and accurately.

Illustration

This is how you can reference Figure 1.

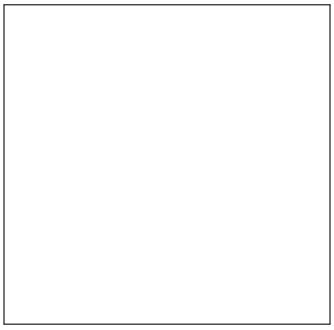

Figure 1: Sample figure caption.

Background & Related Work

Do some background research and cite relevant papers. For example, you can cite a paper like this **?.

Data Processing

Architecture

Baseline Model

Ethical Considerations

39th Conference on Neural Information Processing Systems (NeurIPS 2025).

References